Objectives Aiming at the distributed hybrid energy storage system (HES) in the shipboard integrated vessel power system, a multi-HESs collaborative control method based on the state of charge (SOC) of the energy storage device (ESD) was proposed to achieve the relative. Existing hybrid energy storage control methods typically allocate power between different energy storage types by controlling DC/DC converters on the DC bus. Due to its dependence on the DC bus, this method is typically limited to centralized energy storage and is challenging to apply in enhancing. In this context, this paper proposes a multi-objective coordinated control strategy for HES based on battery grouping in microgrids. The proposed methodology implements two battery groups with time-shifted alternating charging/discharging operations, thereby establishing a coordinated control. This research discusses the solar and wind sources integration in a remote location using hybrid power optimization approaches and a multi energy storage system with batteries and supercapacitors. The controllers in PV and wind turbine systems are used to efficiently operate maximum power point.
