

High-pressure type folding container for weather stations

Overview

Folding container houses are designed to be mobile, with the flexibility to be transported and relocated easily. This portability feature is significant as it allows for the transfer of weather stations between areas experiencing extreme weather conditions. They are designed for the reliable and economic transportation and storage of liquefied gases at cryogenic temperatures, typically colder than -130°F. Folding container houses have become a popular choice for remote weather stations due to their many advantages. Dewars are non-pressurized, double walled containers used to contain cryogenic liquids. They are between the. Protect against corrosion with wetted fittings and tank casings made of stainless steel.
