

What to do if there are bubbles on the photovoltaic panel

Overview

You can detect the start of delamination by bubbles and creases on the plastic rear surface. Some owners try using duct tape and sealant to slow the process down, but such a panel isn't going to last long. So, once you've seen any of the signs of delamination, contact your installer. Bubbles in solar panels, often referred to as delamination, can occur due to a variety of reasons, including manufacturing defects, poor installation practices, or environmental factors. But then you look at your charge controller, and-surprise-it's still. Usually the process starts at one angle or a side of the panel and then spreads across the PV module. Solar panels are often viewed as highly reliable, with lifespans exceeding 25 years and the ability to withstand extreme.
